Always Reliable.

THE BEST you can say of anything is that it turned out just what it was represented to be. It's a great thing to know exactly what you are getting when you buy anything. And it's frequently better to wait until you do know before you buy. People in this county bought drugs, paints, oils, varnishes and books years ago of Saur & Balsley and they continue to patronize their house, because they always find their purchases to be just what they represented them to be. That's about the whole secret of their unprecedented success, and they stick to their old motto.

Money is always to be made by purchasing of Saur & Balsley. A dollar saved is a dollar made is an old saying, but it is as true as gospel, and this should always be kept in mind when you trade with Saur & Balsley, as they guarantee a saving of money, and also a guarantee that you will get the best goods in the market for the least money.

Now that the holiday season is approaching the store of Saur & Balsley is taking on its holiday attire. Goods suitable for gifts are making their appearance, and the stock in this line bids fair of being larger and more varied than ever. Those in search of holiday goods can find just what they want by looking over the stock of Saur & Balsley. Books, fancy stationery, albums, toilet goods, gold pens and holders, and a hundred and one things can here be seen that will make suitable presents for the holiday season.

A specialty is made in wall paper. The stock is large and new, with all the latest patterns to select from, the house always taking pride in showing their stock and how cheap one can paper their house. The window shade stock is also complete.

The paints and oils found at Saur & Balsley's are always standard and can be relied on. Brushes in endless variety, all grades and prices.

For pure drugs Saur & Balsley have a reputation second to none, and their long experience in the business enables them to give their customers the purest and freshest drugs in the market. In fact they will sell no stale goods. Their prescriptions are always compounded by experienced men and can be relied upon as being correct. They also keep in stock all of the best and most reliable patent medicines, comprising remedies and cures for every known disease.

Visitors are always welcome at the store of Saur & Balsley, and obliging clerks ready to show you attention, whether you wish to purchase or not.

SAUR SENTENCED

To Four Years in the Penitentiary.

We take the following from the Democrat of Dec. 29th: The motion for a new trial and arrest of judgment was argued yesterday in the Saur perjury case. This morning Judge Mooney passed on the motions. He said the State had argued that a motion for a new trial and a motion in arrest of judgment presented at the same time were at variance and inconsistent. The Judge held that presenting these two motions at the same time did not place them at variance and they did not conflict. He said these motions must be filed within three days after a verdict had been rendered, hence the time he considered proper.

He said he had given the proposition of granting a new trial in this case much thought and consideration. The rendering of a verdict by a jury necessarily bound the court to a certain extent to abide by the verdict, although the court was allowed the range of his discretion. The Judge in such cases becomes the 13th juror. If the court affirms a verdict it becomes a judgment. If he would approve of the finding the motion would be overruled. A dissection would mean the granting of a new trial. He reviewed the testimony at some length. Said Saur was an interested witness and in his opinion Saur's statement was corruptly made. The oath, in his opinion was not duly administered. The several elements that go to make up the crime charged did exist according to Saur's testimony. The affidavit was prima facie evidence and must be so considered. The Judge took exception to the testimony of the witness who was not unduly biased in favor of the State, but was for the defense. He thought the notary should have identified his own signature when he was positive about another's signature. The Judge said the defendant had denied making affidavit. He did not come as witness whose veracity was unquestioned; he was testifying as a defendant.

If the witness Dyarman had not been sworn there would have been a reasonable doubt in the mind of the court. Dyarman's answers were not in his favor. His statements were unreasonable and certainly discreditable to Saur. The jury was justified in disbelieving Dyarman, as the court disbelieved him. Dyarman was in the habit of making affidavits. He was justified in believing the affidavit was actually sworn to as the notary says he does not believe Dyarman was there on the date mentioned. In concluding the Judge said he concurred in the jury's verdict and the motion for a new trial would be overruled and exceptions noted.

The motion in arrest of judgment was discussed at some length. The Judge said the form of the indictment could be criticised, it having many repetitions, but it did charge the maximum penalty. No question was probably necessary for Saur to make the report. The bank made report through Saur as its cashier. The motion in arrest of judgment was overruled and exceptions noted.

The Judge then asked Mr. Saur if he had anything to say. Saur stood up and replied "Nothing," Mr. Hubbard, in reply to a question from the court said, "We have said all we had to say in the matter." The Judge then defined what constituted perjury under the laws of Ohio, and said the maximum penalty was ten years and the minimum three years. The law intended to punish violators of the statutes and the way of the transgressor was hard. No crime could lead less excuse than perjury; it deprives men of security and destroys confidence among men. The purpose of the law is to protect, and banks should make truthful statements. In passing sentence much depends on the character. One day to some persons would be more than ten years to others.

Mr. Saur had occupied a high position and he would not inflict extreme punishment. On the other hand it must not be permitted to go abroad that Saur had escaped punishment. The Judge concluded by saying "Considering your character and position, slight punishment, I am satisfied will be effective. It is the sentence of this court that you be confined in the Ohio Penitentiary for a period of four years, no part of the time to solitary confinement."

Mr. Saur's counsel immediately moved a suspension of sentence until the convening of Circuit court in this county.

The sentence was suspended until March 4th, at which time Common Pleas court will convene. Circuit court will convene January 29th at which time a motion for a new trial will be argued. Mr. Saur's bond was fixed at $3,000, and he will be at liberty until March 4th.

Greenland's Glaciers.

Nearly all the Greenland glaciers and tongues from the interior ice cap terminate in vertical faces from 100 to 1,000 feet high, presenting facilities for investigation. The vertical faces reveal pronounced stratification on the basal ice, even earth materials in the bases carried by the ice being arranged in layers. Fine laminations were seen 13 or 20 to an inch. The layers are sometimes twisted and contorted and even "shoved" over each other. The glacier movement at the ice border is a foot per day to a foot per week.—Science.

Economical Man Staybolt.

"The most economical man I know of," said Mr. Staybolt, "is my friend and neighbor, Mr. Staybolt. When he smokes a cigar, he lights it carefully and completely, so that it will burn perfectly and without waste, and having so lighted it he blows out the match. Of course he knows that a match once ignited is of no further use, but his habit of mind is such that he hates to see any waste of material whatever. Some men blow out a lighted match before throwing it away, so that no harm can come from it. Mr. Staybolt may have that in mind, too, but his actual impulse no doubt springs from his spirit of economy."—New York Sun.

Good When You Find It.

Judge Caldwell of North Carolina was slow to see the point of a joke. On trying a case on one occasion the solicitor called in vain for a witness named Sarah Mooney. As she did not answer he informed the court that he could not proceed "without ceremony." The bar laughed, but the judge looked puzzled. Some weeks after that when at home the point dawned on him, and he broke into a loud laugh. Upon his wife inquiring the cause of his merriment he explained that the solicitor had called Sallie Mooney, and when she did not answer he had said he could not proceed without ceremony. The wife said she did not see the point. The judge said it had taken him three weeks to find it, but when she did see it would be very funny.—Green Dag.
